THE INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE. The two houses of the General Assembly have adhourned after the General Assembly have adhourned after the feet and left the prosecution of further inquiries as to this matter in the hands of a House secul committee, consisting of Mesers, Barton, Moor, and Bazlewood. They will commence work in a few days, but they cannot pursue the investigation with system and satisfaction until they have beard from every clerk in the State. They will have to assertion

In the Senate yesterday Mr. Pawell spoke in opposition to the order for adjournment at 8 P. M., and stated with great emphasi-that, in his opinion, the Legislature never ought to leave Riemond until it has fer-retted out the tregularities in the office of the Auditor of Public Accounts; Irregu-larities, which seem to have run through ed, and stated that in two instances that had come to his knowledge cheeks given by the cierk of Londonn and each been kept a year before they were deposited for collection, going to show that these clerks accounts were kept a good while before they were audited and credited and the checks forwarded for collection. Perhaps this system would account for some of the clerks not being credited on the books as they ought to be. Mr. Heaton rather threw doubt upon the suggestion of Mr. Powell that because the clerks of courts hold the receipts of Mr. W. R. Smith, the loss would necessarily fall upon the state; he was not so certain about that. Mr. Mr. Gaines, of Nottoway, said that from information that had come to bim, a check sent by the clerk of his county to the Auditor bere was not presented for collection to the bank at Blacks and Whites until near two years after it was given. Both of these gentlemen mentioned these facts to show that there had been great delay in auditing clerks' accounts, and they were inclined to believe that that way of doing business. Father than criminal pur-lay in auditing clerks' accounts, and they were inclined to believe that that way of doing business, rather than criminal purpose, would account for the recent developments in the Auditor's office; developments which, so far as made known is the slight investigation the subject has so far had, do not affect the present Auditor.

The order for adjournment was already made, and so this discussion—which was made, and so this discussion-which was quite informal-amounted to nothing.

quite informal—amounted to nothing.
THE PETERSHUEG CLEEK'S ACCOUNT.
Our Petersburg correspondent writes as follows concerning the Petersburg clerk's accounts with the State:
In the Dispatch of yesterday the clerk of the courts in Petersburg was reported as among those who had made no returns to the Anditor for the year 1882-83. On the contrary, Mr. Armistead, the clerk, has a receipt in full for his settlement for that year. On the 18th of last December he forwarded a check in full for his indebtedness to the State for that year, amounting to about $1,552$. The check was upon the Planters and Alcekanias Bank, but, it seems, was not collected. The money remained in the bank until the 19th of May, 1884, the day of the failure, and was subsequently proved as a claim of the State against the bank.

WHAT THE CLEEK OF THE COURT OF DANVILLE.

I observe in your Sunday's edition of the Bispatch of 20th November, 1884, a report of the committee appointed by the Legislature of Virginia to investigate the Auditor's office, in which it is stated that the books of the Auditor's office show that no payments have been made by the cierk no payments have been made by the cierk of the Corporation Court of Danville of the Corporation Court of Danville of the Corporation Court of Panville of Panville of the Corporation Court of Panville of Pa

As regards the town of North Danyille, which is reported as defectent. I beg leare to state that North Danyille, baving no court of record, all suits against persons in the latter town are brought in the courts of Danyille, and, therefore, there are no reports required from North Danyille—the taxes on law process in suits against persons in that town being included in reports from the clerk of Danyille.

Lawyers' Chambers.

The improvements in the the upper stories of the Merchauts' National Bank building are about complete, and the object for which these improvements were made could hardly have been more perfectly attained. The whole upper part of the building has been converted into lawyers' chambers, which can be used single or in, suits. In order to solve the problems of what may be termed the lower tenement, which part of the building goes up in the rear only one story above Main street, has what may be termed the lower foreinent, which part of the building goes up in the rear only one story above Main street, has been floored over and coofed, thus forming a court (so to speak), lighted with a skylight, extending the entire length of the roof. The old narrow, dark passage leading to the offices which were on the first floor of the Eleventh-street extension of the building, has been thrown into these rooms, and the rooms now open upon the court. The old hall on the third floor has been divided into rooms corresponding in size with the rooms on the second floor, and opening upon a light, handsome, but substantial iron baleony, which is approached from the second floor by a wide staircase. At the extreme rear of the court walls have been run up and suits of rooms put in on both the second and third floors. The rooms are finished in hard wood, and, with what we have called the court, are heated by steam. innished in hard wood, and, with what we have called the court, are leated by steam. The situation is retired and quiet, and no expense has been spared in rendering the building convenient in every particular. In a few days Mr. H.
